in the use of testing Guide Series in the latest Ultimate Guide process, it is natural to think of the performance of M9020 XTR. Shimano and SRAM each of its guide ultimate and XTR M9020 these two mountain disc brakes, obvious similarities: they are attributable to the forest road uses series, and is one of the top products. < p > A to disc brakes, Shimano and SRAM is on the market today two leading, the gap between two high order products very small - rather than a user's personal preference is like to pick chocolate or strawberry ice cream like, rather than which was way better than the other a lot. Since Guide's Ultimate SRAM is the top product of their forest road series, then why don't they come with XTR Shimano than it? First of all, from the weight of the two products, price, and the appearance of a simple first round comparison. Guide Ultimate V.S. Shimano XTR SRAM M90201:Part< p > weight: SRAM new products reached unprecedented lightweight, ultimate guide front disc brake weigh 240 grams, forest road version of XTR is 250 grams. It contains both front calipers, rod, tubing and brake pads. price: Ultimate:288 Guide USD / round. M9020:299 XTR USD / round. appearance: the beauty is very subjective, my personal preference is Shimano. Design of the XTR version of the forest road line, Guide Ultimate looks better than the low-key, advanced purification. SRAM guide ultimate disc brake is to guide series in the latest, become in the series the most lightweight, most design details of the top products. This includes: carbon rod, titanium alloy rod parts, free tool rod distance and to adjust the brake skin and re designed to increase the cooling performance of the caliper. Compared with Guide RSC, Ultimate 80 grams lighter, a round of $288, compared with 205 of RSC some precious beauty. details / set purpose: All Mountain / forest road - the new S4 four piston caliper titanium alloy rod parts, carbon fiber rod - weight: 240 grams (front caliper brake pads + + + tubing rod) DOT 5.1 brake oil city price: $288 / have four teeth each caliper Aluminum Alloy piston, >
